

Choosing an international health insurer is an important decision. Differences in cover, service and support are not always easy to assess before becoming a customer, making the experiences of existing customers an important part of the decision-making process.

Trustpilot is one of the world’s largest independent consumer review platforms, bringing together hundreds of millions of reviews from consumers worldwide. For international health insurance, these reviews offer valuable insight into real customer experiences, while Trustpilot ratings provide a useful independent benchmark for comparing customer experience across providers.
